

Tajo del Abanico

Walking - Easy

This is an easy walk from Ronda and back. The Tajo del Abanico is a hidden gem - a limestone rock gorge which ends at a towering rock named "The Fan" due to its unusual shape, formed from many centuries of wind and rain erosion of the limestone rock cliffs. The route takes you through a quiet valley, past beautiful rock formations and along the remains of a medieval cobbled pathway.

On the route to the Tajo del Abanico you will pass the Preachers' Tower from where you can enjoy fabulous views across the valley towards Ronda town, the cliffs and gorge.

We can finish this walk either on the plaza of one of Ronda's oldest districts, the Barrio San Francisco, overlooked by the mediaeval Almocobar Gate and church of Espiritu Santu, or we can head down a steep cobbled road to a pathway which leads under the Puente Nuevo bridge and then climb up the side of the gorge to finish in the old town.
